

GERRY HAS HIS BOY.

Italian Parents Mourn the Loss of Six-Year-Old Joe.

Arrested for Begging and Torn from His Home by the Agents.

Friends Who Know the Honest People Interested in the Case.

There is sorrow to-day in the household of Peter and Sebastiana Millet, who live on the second floor of the double tenement at 342 Elizabeth street, though until ten days ago there was no happier family than theirs in that Italian neighborhood.

When the father would come home at 6 o'clock every day from his work he knew no greater pleasure than to dandle the younger of his four children on his knee and stroke the glossy curls of the elder two.

But one day a little over a week ago Peter returned home to find that the pet of his household, little Giuseppe, six years of age, was gone. The agents of the Gerry Society had taken him, and in his place had left a notice for the parents to appear in Jefferson Market court the following day, when the child was to be arraigned.

The offense was that he had been found selling papers and begging in the streets. The little fellow's mother, Sebastiana, became ill and only the father and thirteen-year-old brother Peter could attend the arraignment.

The boy was found guilty on the testimony of Mr. Gerry's agents and placed in the custody of his society, which sent him to an institution in Peekskill to spend the next fifteen years of his life.

It would have touched even the heart of Mr. Gerry to hear the sobs and moans of the mother, when she learned that little Giuseppe had been taken away for strangers and felt that she might never see her boy.

Peter, the brother, delivers evening newspapers to Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Young, of 234 East Fourteenth street, among others. The Youngs took an interest in him, and they were at first surprised and then alarmed when the little news-carrier failed to make his appearance for more than a week. At length Peter appeared again, and told his story.

Mr. Young, who is a well-known and respected man in the neighborhood, explained, with tears in his eyes, that Joe had not sold papers, but had only helped his brother distribute them after school hours.

"Now, I know both children well," said Mrs. Young to an EVENING WORLD reporter, "and I can vouch for the truthfulness of the older one. As for the mother, I know her to be a good, thrifty housewife and a loving, careful mother. The father I have never met, but from what his wife and the children have told me of him I believe him to be a good, sober and industrious man."

"The reason why I take so much interest in their case," said Mrs. Young, "is that three years ago my daughter, Mrs. Shannon, who with her little son, is living with us, was stricken with paralysis. Young Peter, who was supplying us even then with THE EVENING WORLD, had grown very much attached to my daughter because she had often spoken kindly to him, and so, all during her illness, which lasted many months, the little fellow frequently brought her flowers and acted so kindly that we thought he was her son."

"One day some months ago, Peter brought his mother and brother Joe here and introduced them. The poor woman had come to thank us for our love for Peter. She looked so sad and her face was so swollen that we could not help but feel sorry for her."

"Some time later," Mrs. Young went on, "Joe came to see us again. Mrs. Young, said he, 'Peter' and 'Joe' were his names. He was a little boy, about six years old, and he was very much attached to me."

"I was very much interested in him," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in his mother and brother. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

"I was very much interested in them," Mrs. Young said, "and I was very much interested in them. I was very much interested in them, and I was very much interested in them."

AUTOPSY ON MARLBOROUGH.

It Will Determine Whether an Inquest Is Necessary.

Four Dowagers Living to Add to the Drain on the Estate.

LONDON, Nov. 10. It is believed that the coroner will hold an inquest on the dead Duke of Marlborough at Blenheim Palace tomorrow.

It is supposed that death resulted from heart disease.

A post-mortem examination of the body will be held this afternoon to determine beyond any doubt the cause of his death. The result of the examination will be kept private until it is decided whether a coroner's inquest is really necessary.

The Duke died in the heaviest dowagered in the peerage. The widows of the sixth and seventh dukes are still alive; next comes Lady Blandford, the last dowager first wife, who secured a divorce from her husband, and lastly, the present Duchess. The jointures of these four will add to the drain upon the revenues of the estate, which still reach £35,000 yearly, but which are heavily encumbered.

The Duke is physically a contrast to the general run of dukes. He is small and slim, with a neat figure. His features resemble those of the first Duke of Marlborough. He has a high forehead and an aquiline nose.

He is now at Trinity College, Cambridge University, where he has proved an able student. At the same time, he is a clever polo and cricket player and a bold rider to boot. He has something of his father's art tastes, being already well known to Bond street dealers in antiques.

On the night preceding his death the Duke was engaged in writing an account on modern railway cars, which had been suggested to him by the recent railway accidents in England.

He was chairman of three companies and a director in two others. These companies were connected with electric lighting, telephones and railways.

ISMA WEDS LADY MARGARET.

Marquis of Hertford's Daughter Married to the Ship-Owner.

LONDON, Nov. 10. The marriage took place at 10 o'clock this morning at the White Star Line ship-owner, and Lady Margaret, Alice, eldest daughter of the Marquis of Hertford.

The ceremony, which was full of pomp, was performed at Arrow Church, a short distance from Mayfair, the seat of the Marquis, in Warwickshire, by Rev. Lord Victor Seymour.

The bride was given away by her father. She wore a costume of white satin and ermine, and a large veil. Her ornaments were diamonds and pearls.

The guests were many and included a large number of representatives of the aristocratic families of the Kingdom. Among those present were the Marchioness of Hertford, the Countess of Warwick and Viscount Bridport.

The honeymoon will be spent at Wroxall Abbey.

Mr. James Ismay is a brother of J. Bruce Ismay, formerly agent of the White Star Line in New York. He is also a member of the Ismay firm in Liverpool.

The bride's father, the Marquis of Hertford, is the first Duke of Somerset, Lord Protector of the realm of Edward VI. The motto of the Ismay family is "Fide et Amore" (Faith and Love). Lady Margaret was born March 22, 1906, and is therefore twenty-three years old.

FOUR BURNED TO DEATH.

Awful Wreck on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul.

OTTAWA, Ill., Nov. 10. On the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road, last night, at Highland Center, a small freight train derailed into the caissons of a local freight train standing on the track, telescoping the caissons and four cars.

The caissons caught fire and four people were burned to death.

Mrs. Lizzie Hunter, of this city, got her head out of a window and pleaded with those about to save her, but her body was pinned by a freight car and it was impossible to extricate her.

Mrs. Jones, also of this city, tried to escape through a window, but could not.

The other victims were an unknown woman and a man thought to be a butcher at Oakwood.

The injured are Mrs. Clyde Millisack and Mrs. Pickett, of this city, and Miss Lizzie Corey, of Saginaw. They are badly burned, but not fatally.

A coroner's inquest was held at the hospital where the bodies were lying in state. The cause of the disaster was not yet determined.

He is Here on Private Business and Will Not Talk Politics.

A distinguished visitor in New York to-day is Gen. Ben Butler, of Massachusetts. He has come to this city on some private business, and is stopping at the Astor House.

To an EVENING WORLD reporter who called upon him this morning to get his views on the result of the Presidential election, he said he was too busy to talk about politics.

The venerable soldier in growing quietude of his old age, and he seems when he walks. He said he was not in town for several days.

Landslide on the Hudson River Road.

POCONO, N. J., Nov. 10. A small landslide occurred on the line of the Hudson River Railroad near Pocono Park today, delaying traffic about twenty minutes.

When Baby was Sick, we gave her Castoria.

McGLORY A FREE MAN AGAIN.

His Penal Term on Blackwell's Island Completed.

Remaining To-Day Secluded and Silent in His Harlem Home.

LONDON, Nov. 10. It is believed that the coroner will hold an inquest on the dead Duke of Marlborough at Blenheim Palace tomorrow.

It is supposed that death resulted from heart disease.

A post-mortem examination of the body will be held this afternoon to determine beyond any doubt the cause of his death. The result of the examination will be kept private until it is decided whether a coroner's inquest is really necessary.

The Duke died in the heaviest dowagered in the peerage. The widows of the sixth and seventh dukes are still alive; next comes Lady Blandford, the last dowager first wife, who secured a divorce from her husband, and lastly, the present Duchess. The jointures of these four will add to the drain upon the revenues of the estate, which still reach £35,000 yearly, but which are heavily encumbered.

The Duke is physically a contrast to the general run of dukes. He is small and slim, with a neat figure. His features resemble those of the first Duke of Marlborough. He has a high forehead and an aquiline nose.

He is now at Trinity College, Cambridge University, where he has proved an able student. At the same time, he is a clever polo and cricket player and a bold rider to boot. He has something of his father's art tastes, being already well known to Bond street dealers in antiques.

On the night preceding his death the Duke was engaged in writing an account on modern railway cars, which had been suggested to him by the recent railway accidents in England.

He was chairman of three companies and a director in two others. These companies were connected with electric lighting, telephones and railways.

ISMA WEDS LADY MARGARET.

Marquis of Hertford's Daughter Married to the Ship-Owner.

LONDON, Nov. 10. The marriage took place at 10 o'clock this morning at the White Star Line ship-owner, and Lady Margaret, Alice, eldest daughter of the Marquis of Hertford.

The ceremony, which was full of pomp, was performed at Arrow Church, a short distance from Mayfair, the seat of the Marquis, in Warwickshire, by Rev. Lord Victor Seymour.

The bride was given away by her father. She wore a costume of white satin and ermine, and a large veil. Her ornaments were diamonds and pearls.

The guests were many and included a large number of representatives of the aristocratic families of the Kingdom. Among those present were the Marchioness of Hertford, the Countess of Warwick and Viscount Bridport.

The honeymoon will be spent at Wroxall Abbey.

Mr. James Ismay is a brother of J. Bruce Ismay, formerly agent of the White Star Line in New York. He is also a member of the Ismay firm in Liverpool.

The bride's father, the Marquis of Hertford, is the first Duke of Somerset, Lord Protector of the realm of Edward VI. The motto of the Ismay family is "Fide et Amore" (Faith and Love). Lady Margaret was born March 22, 1906, and is therefore twenty-three years old.

FOUR BURNED TO DEATH.

Awful Wreck on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul.

OTTAWA, Ill., Nov. 10. On the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road, last night, at Highland Center, a small freight train derailed into the caissons of a local freight train standing on the track, telescoping the caissons and four cars.

The caissons caught fire and four people were burned to death.

Mrs. Lizzie Hunter, of this city, got her head out of a window and pleaded with those about to save her, but her body was pinned by a freight car and it was impossible to extricate her.

Mrs. Jones, also of this city, tried to escape through a window, but could not.

The other victims were an unknown woman and a man thought to be a butcher at Oakwood.

The injured are Mrs. Clyde Millisack and Mrs. Pickett, of this city, and Miss Lizzie Corey, of Saginaw. They are badly burned, but not fatally.

A coroner's inquest was held at the hospital where the bodies were lying in state. The cause of the disaster was not yet determined.

He is Here on Private Business and Will Not Talk Politics.

A distinguished visitor in New York to-day is Gen. Ben Butler, of Massachusetts. He has come to this city on some private business, and is stopping at the Astor House.

To an EVENING WORLD reporter who called upon him this morning to get his views on the result of the Presidential election, he said he was too busy to talk about politics.

The venerable soldier in growing quietude of his old age, and he seems when he walks. He said he was not in town for several days.

Landslide on the Hudson River Road.

POCONO, N. J., Nov. 10. A small landslide occurred on the line of the Hudson River Railroad near Pocono Park today, delaying traffic about twenty minutes.

When Baby was Sick, we gave her Castoria.

TALK OF THE TURF.

Odds-on Favorites Kill the Interest at the Cutenburg Track.

JOE FLYNN'S UNJUST ATTACK.

Why Did Martin Bide Gladiator When Irregular Was Entered?

LONDON, Nov. 10. It is believed that the coroner will hold an inquest on the dead Duke of Marlborough at Blenheim Palace tomorrow.

It is supposed that death resulted from heart disease.

A post-mortem examination of the body will be held this afternoon to determine beyond any doubt the cause of his death. The result of the examination will be kept private until it is decided whether a coroner's inquest is really necessary.

The Duke died in the heaviest dowagered in the peerage. The widows of the sixth and seventh dukes are still alive; next comes Lady Blandford, the last dowager first wife, who secured a divorce from her husband, and lastly, the present Duchess. The jointures of these four will add to the drain upon the revenues of the estate, which still reach £35,000 yearly, but which are heavily encumbered.

The Duke is physically a contrast to the general run of dukes. He is small and slim, with a neat figure. His features resemble those of the first Duke of Marlborough. He has a high forehead and an aquiline nose.

He is now at Trinity College, Cambridge University, where he has proved an able student. At the same time, he is a clever polo and cricket player and a bold rider to boot. He has something of his father's art tastes, being already well known to Bond street dealers in antiques.

On the night preceding his death the Duke was engaged in writing an account on modern railway cars, which had been suggested to him by the recent railway accidents in England.

He was chairman of three companies and a director in two others. These companies were connected with electric lighting, telephones and railways.

ISMA WEDS LADY MARGARET.

Marquis of Hertford's Daughter Married to the Ship-Owner.

LONDON, Nov. 10. The marriage took place at 10 o'clock this morning at the White Star Line ship-owner, and Lady Margaret, Alice, eldest daughter of the Marquis of Hertford.

The ceremony, which was full of pomp, was performed at Arrow Church, a short distance from Mayfair, the seat of the Marquis, in Warwickshire, by Rev. Lord Victor Seymour.

The bride was given away by her father. She wore a costume of white satin and ermine, and a large veil. Her ornaments were diamonds and pearls.

The guests were many and included a large number of representatives of the aristocratic families of the Kingdom. Among those present were the Marchioness of Hertford, the Countess of Warwick and Viscount Bridport.

The honeymoon will be spent at Wroxall Abbey.

Mr. James Ismay is a brother of J. Bruce Ismay, formerly agent of the White Star Line in New York. He is also a member of the Ismay firm in Liverpool.

The bride's father, the Marquis of Hertford, is the first Duke of Somerset, Lord Protector of the realm of Edward VI. The motto of the Ismay family is "Fide et Amore" (Faith and Love). Lady Margaret was born March 22, 1906, and is therefore twenty-three years old.

FOUR BURNED TO DEATH.

Awful Wreck on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul.

OTTAWA, Ill., Nov. 10. On the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road, last night, at Highland Center, a small freight train derailed into the caissons of a local freight train standing on the track, telescoping the caissons and four cars.

The caissons caught fire and four people were burned to death.

Mrs. Lizzie Hunter, of this city, got her head out of a window and pleaded with those about to save her, but her body was pinned by a freight car and it was impossible to extricate her.

Mrs. Jones, also of this city, tried to escape through a window, but could not.

The other victims were an unknown woman and a man thought to be a butcher at Oakwood.

The injured are Mrs. Clyde Millisack and Mrs. Pickett, of this city, and Miss Lizzie Corey, of Saginaw. They are badly burned, but not fatally.

A coroner's inquest was held at the hospital where the bodies were lying in state. The cause of the disaster was not yet determined.

He is Here on Private Business and Will Not Talk Politics.

A distinguished visitor in New York to-day is Gen. Ben Butler, of Massachusetts. He has come to this city on some private business, and is stopping at the Astor House.

To an EVENING WORLD reporter who called upon him this morning to get his views on the result of the Presidential election, he said he was too busy to talk about politics.

The venerable soldier in growing quietude of his old age, and he seems when he walks. He said he was not in town for several days.

Landslide on the Hudson River Road.

POCONO, N. J., Nov. 10. A small landslide occurred on the line of the Hudson River Railroad near Pocono Park today, delaying traffic about twenty minutes.

POINTERS ON THE RACES.

Racing at the Hilltop Track Rain or Shine.

My Fellow, Jack Rose and Finelon Meet at a Mile.

LONDON, Nov. 10. It is believed that the coroner will hold an inquest on the dead Duke of Marlborough at Blenheim Palace tomorrow.

It is supposed that death resulted from heart disease.

A post-mortem examination of the body will be held this afternoon to determine beyond any doubt the cause of his death. The result of the examination will be kept private until it is decided whether a coroner's inquest is really necessary.

The Duke died in the heaviest dowagered in the peerage. The widows of the sixth and seventh dukes are still alive; next comes Lady Blandford, the last dowager first wife, who secured a divorce from her husband, and lastly, the present Duchess. The jointures of these four will add to the drain upon the revenues of the estate, which still reach £35,000 yearly, but which are heavily encumbered.

The Duke is physically a contrast to the general run of dukes. He is small and slim, with a neat figure. His features resemble those of the first Duke of Marlborough. He has a high forehead and an aquiline nose.

He is now at Trinity College, Cambridge University, where he has proved an able student. At the same time, he is a clever polo and cricket player and a bold rider to boot. He has something of his father's art tastes, being already well known to Bond street dealers in antiques.

On the night preceding his death the Duke was engaged in writing an account on modern railway cars, which had been suggested to him by the recent railway accidents in England.

He was chairman of three companies and a director in two others. These companies were connected with electric lighting, telephones and railways.

ISMA WEDS LADY MARGARET.

Marquis of Hertford's Daughter Married to the Ship-Owner.

LONDON, Nov. 10. The marriage took place at 10 o'clock this morning at the White Star Line ship-owner, and Lady Margaret, Alice, eldest daughter of the Marquis of Hertford.

The ceremony, which was full of pomp, was performed at Arrow Church, a short distance from Mayfair, the seat of the Marquis, in Warwickshire, by Rev. Lord Victor Seymour.

The bride was given away by her father. She wore a costume of white satin and ermine, and a large veil. Her ornaments were diamonds and pearls.

The guests were many and included a large number of representatives of the aristocratic families of the Kingdom. Among those present were the Marchioness of Hertford, the Countess of Warwick and Viscount Bridport.

The honeymoon will be spent at Wroxall Abbey.

Mr. James Ismay is a brother of J. Bruce Ismay, formerly agent of the White Star Line in New York. He is also a member of the Ismay firm in Liverpool.

The bride's father, the Marquis of Hertford, is the first Duke of Somerset, Lord Protector of the realm of Edward VI. The motto of the Ismay family is "Fide et Amore" (Faith and Love). Lady Margaret was born March 22, 1906, and is therefore twenty-three years old.

FOUR BURNED TO DEATH.

Awful Wreck on the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul.

OTTAWA, Ill., Nov. 10. On the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul road, last night, at Highland Center, a small freight train derailed into the caissons of a local freight train standing on the track, telescoping the caissons and four cars.

The caissons caught fire and four people were burned to death.

Mrs. Lizzie Hunter, of this city, got her head out of a window and pleaded with those about to save her, but her body was pinned by a freight car and it was impossible to extricate her.

Mrs. Jones, also of this city, tried to escape through a window, but could not.

The other victims were an unknown woman and a man thought to be a butcher at Oakwood.

The injured are Mrs. Clyde Millisack and Mrs. Pickett, of this city, and Miss Lizzie Corey, of Saginaw. They are badly burned, but not fatally.

A coroner's inquest was held at the hospital where the bodies were lying in state. The cause of the disaster was not yet determined.

He is Here on Private Business and Will Not Talk Politics.